HOW TO IMPROVE POOR LAND-THE QUESTION OF COMMERCIAL FERTILIZERS-THE USE OF LIME-AS TO "EXPERIMENT" STATIONS.

Reported for THE EVENING STAR. This society met at the house of John Ballenchair. The State Agricultural society having invited the various local organizations to send delegates to Richmond at the time of the state fair, who would be received as guests of the society, the president of the Woodlawn club was appointed as such. The critical report was read, alluding to the good order in which everything was found about Mr. Ballenger's place, the fall seeding all done and most of the grain up. They thought the lands too wide-about eight paces, sixteen feet, would be better on this level land. Pasture and grass lands looking well for this dry season. Judging from the size and quantity of the fodder the corn crop was large. Stock all in exceptionally good condition. In the matter of tools and implements there was a place for everything and nearly everything in its place. Fences in good order and well cleaned up. The dwelling a model of neatness and convenience, with ample out-buildings for all purposes.

The question of how to improve poor land taken up and discussed with considerable latitude. The ever-recurring subject of ime received its share of attention; oyster shell lime especially coming in for its medicum of praise and censure according to the degree of success or failure that had attended its use. John Bailenger and Courtland Lukens each had short essays on the subject in hand. The ormer thought it was impossible to enrich land by the use of commercial fertilizers alone; they only acted as stimulants; that one nure in conjunction with the fertilizers, and in that way the land could be made to grow paying crops and at the same time increase in ferlity. Chemists tell us that crops receive a large amount of fertilizing material from the atmosphere, which, perhaps, is not to be ques-tioned, but he had yet to see the first piece of thin land made rich by that agency alone. His brother, Levi Ballenger, living in New Jersey, who was present, stated, on the con-trary, that he had one field on his farm that had received nothing in the way of fertilizers for fifteen years except concentrated manures, and that it produced quite as well as any of his ther fields that had been treated with stable manure, but he further observed that no homeopathic doses would do-you must put on as nuch in value as you would of yard manure. If we would count the actual cost of the usual coatings of stable manure that are applied to land it would be found to be three times as much perhaps as the few hundred pounds of phosphates that are generally used per acre. C. Lukens' plan for improving poor land would be to plow when in good order in the spring and apply three hundred pounds equal art guano and dissolved bone per acre and sow with oats. After harvest, seed to wheat with an application of 200 pounds guano and 400 of raw bone, 14 bushels wheat, 6 quarts timothy and not less than 4 of clover seed per acre, then et it lay over one year, taking off no hay crop; then plow again, not less than twice, give sev-eral harrowings and rollings, then a moderate coat of stable manure; 200 pounds Bryant's No. 2 and 300 of raw bone per acre; sow to wheat and grass again; if not in good condition after this go and leave it. If a farm of 100 acres is to be improved, take one-seventh at a time, sow on that portion early in the winter 500 pounds fine ground raw bone per acre; plow in spring four to five inches deep, plant to corn with some good fertilizer in the hill; work deep and often. Take another seventh for fall seeding, and freat as before recommended. Next year take two more sevenths, and so on until all is brought in. In the mean time put on stock and feed high; make plenty or manure and apply in place of part of the fertilizer. For the feeding of stock you should get a small profit cost of fertilizers, particularly if done under the marks, and a resolution was proposed—that no more money be appropriated in this state for any such purposes. The resolution was laid over until next meeting, when the subject will be discussed "Whether it is advisable, in view of the present financial condition of the state,

RIVAL, AND THRASHED HIM. At Toledo, O., an exciting scene occurred in the law office of J. P. Delphey, Monday noon, which brings again into prominence the Johnson-Delphey love scrape, which dragged through the courts there last summer. Delphey was sitting in his office when Prot. J. B. Bulley, organist of the First Congregational church, entered and proceeded to pulverize the attorney. The melee drew a crowd, and both contestants, now badly disfigured, were separated, and Bulley was arrested. The trouble grew out of two letters which Delphey laid on the organ Sunday for Miss Neva Johnson, the pretty so-prano. Bulley found them and read them, and became greatly incensed at the contents. Both gentlemen are admirers of Miss Neva, who preers Bulley. Delphey has been almost a crank his attentions, haunting her on all occasions and following her everywhere. Last summer he met her on the street one day and kissed her. She caused his arrest, and a great deal of gossip grew out of the trial. All the parties are highly connected. Miss Johnson is one of the eading sopranos of the west, and Prof. Bulley is known favorably in musical circles.

Blunk, Walter and Kellum are only 22 to 25 years old. They are the most expert horse thieves in the southwest. In 1881 they stole a number of horses from Fayettsville and took them to Wichita, Kansas, where they sold them. Murderous Burglars in Obio. EXCITING CHASE OF FLYING BURGLARS BY A great excitement prevailed all day on Monday among the population of Upper Sandusky, Ohio. About two o'clock in the morning Mr. Brinckerhoff's residence was broken into by burglars. Officers Brobst and Dimpsey learning of the fact, immediately got on the trail of the robbers and overtook them half a mile west of the city, on the Fort Wayne railroad tracks.
Officer Brobst was in the act of taking hold of Officer Brobst was in the act of taking hold of one when the man drew a revolver and shot the officer twice, one ball passing entirely through the neck, and the other entering the hip. The wounded man fell, when his assailants went to the assistance of the other burglar, who was struggling with the other officer. After exchanging five shots they knocked Dimpsey down the embankment and fled. As the night was very dark, they were soon out of sight. Dimpsey soon regained his footing, picked up his companion and carried him to the Utah house. Physicians pronounced the wounds of a serious character, likely to prove fatal. Sheriff Shaler caused the court-house bell to be rung to call out the citizens for a chase after the fugitives. This was about three o'clock in the morning, and in a short time a large number fugitives. This was about three o'clock in the morning, and in a short time a large number of people had hastily gathered in the public square. The sheriff soon organized a number of squads of deputies and started them out in pursuit. At nine o'clock in the morning Mayor Gibson issued a call for more volunteers to join the chase, and another party went out. About three o'clock in the afternoon the sheriff returned to town with two suspicious characters, whom he had arrested in a country barn. They answered the description of the burglars, but being unarmed, their guilt is uncertain. At night the excitement ran high, and there is likely to be lynching whenever the people feel satisfied that the guilty men have been found.

All the victims of the Jersey City railroad accident, except the two boys, have been identified. The wounded are doing well except Marinus Klinger, who will probably die. The mental sufferings of Pratt, the telegraph operator whose carelesaness caused the accident, seem to be acute. He is excessively nervous. Coronor Hughes, of Bergen Point, ventures the opinion that others may possibly have to share with Pratt the responsibility for the disaster. He intends to sitt the rumors about Flagman Rhoads, of the emigrant train, failing to run back with a lantern to protect his train, as the rule requires in all cases when a train stops on the main track. main track.

Vaccination on the Rail. SCENES ON A TRAIN FROM CANADA-UNCLE SAM'S VACCINATOR.

From the Montreal Herald. As we halt for a moment at Sutton Junction the train is boarded by an elderly, good-natured looking gentleman in spectacles, with a sort of Peter Cooper expression of benevolence upon his face, who is announced as Dr. Hamilton, of avenue, Jersey City, on Thursday last, eloped Richfort, Vt., examining physician in the emwith William Dafeldecker. Mrs. Turner ploy of the United States authorities, whose business it is to examine all passengers bound for Uncle Sam's domain, with a view to the vaccination of all the unvaccinated." Beginning with the first passenger found in the "smoker," the foremost car of the train, he is confronted by the doctor with:— "Been vaccinated?"

If the answer is yes.

"Got a certificate?"

Unless this can be produced the individual is compelled to show his arm, when, unless there is a fresh scar, the passenger is obliged to again undergo the operation or leave the train. Down into his vest pocket goes the doctor, produces a little tin box in which he keeps the "points," off comes the lid, out comes the ivory point, in a moment a tiny drop of blood appears on the surface of the skin, the vaccine is moistened by the breath, the matter rubbed off upon the lacerated part, and the job is done.

Having finished with the passengers in the smoking car, the next car, filled almost entirely with ladies, is visited by the doctor. Here begins the fun; those tight-fitting sleeves cannot be pulled up, and mayhap the certificate has been left at home; yes, it has, honor bound, and only two weeks ago, the lady declares, she was vaccinated by Dr. B., of Montreal. She will send and have the doctor send a certificate to the examining physician. No, that won't do, and the law must be complied with. A tug at the tightly-fitting jersey sleeve, another determined pull, and the arm is bared nearly to the elbow. "That will do," said the doctor. Out comes the little knife and point, and thirty seconds later the doctor passes on, while the lady sinks hack in her seat with defiance flashing comes the little knife and point, and thirty seconds later the doctor passes on, while the lady sir," says a pretty, brown-eyed damsel, "I have been vaccinated," and the eyes become moistened and the cheeks quiver as with suppressed emotion. But the old doctor is obdurate. Busipess is business, and his business is to see that she warned Mrs. Turner to keey away from her son, who, she said, was keeping company with an estimable girl. This Mrs. Turner agreed to do. The intimacy between her and Dafeldecker, however, was kept up. They met clandestinely, and very often during the past two weeks during her husband's absence, Dafeldecker called upon Mrs. Turner at her home. On Wednesday last Turner and Arthur Bogart, Mrs. Turner's brother, went to Long Branch to visit some friends. They intended to remain there a week, and Mrs. Turner was to have joined them with her two children on the day after their arrival. Rafore leaving the house Turner kissed his wife affectionately. She admired a diamond finger ring which he had just bought, and induced him to give it to her, telling him she would return it when she "It was but just a little while ago; indeed, it was, doctor. I can't show you my arm here Can't you believe me?"

No; the doctor cannot, and will not. The girl sees there is no use, and rejuctantly begins tugging at her waist. Down it comes from the the neck, the left shoulder is exposed, then the arm. The doctor, evidently, is not satisfied.

"When were you vaccinated?" "Two years ago."
"Scar is not fresh enough," says the doctor, and again out comes the scarifier and vaccine. A scratch and scream, but the physician is not daunted and continues the work, without daunted and continues the work, without flinching, very gently, but with the air of a man who thoroughly understands his business.

"There, that will do," he says, and the girl, replacing her wardrobe, sinks back in her seat, while the doctor, passing on, is heard to remark: "She had never been vaccinated."

OTHELLO'S WIFE GETS HIM ARRESTED,-The New York Sun of yesterday says: Benjamin J. Ford, the Othello of the Astor Place (colored) Dramatic company, was accused in Jefferson Market yesterday of assaulting his wife, Hattie. Mrs. Ford said that she married him thattle. Mrs. Ford said that she married him three years ago, but that they were unhappy and separated. She is employed as a servant at 239 west 39th street. On September 28 she attended an entertainment in the Atalanta Casino. Her husband had been in the habit of following her around, and he was at the entertainment. They quarrelled, and she says he struck her a violent blow on the head. Mr. Ford said that he is a waiter when he is off duty as Othello. His counsel was not onite. duty as Othello. His counsel was not quite ready to go on with the examination which was demanded, and Justice O'Reilly postponed it until Sunday. Ford turnished $300 bail.

A NEW HAVEN ELOPEMENT .- W. A. Mc Dowell, a St. Louis (Mo.) graduate of Yale college in the class of 1884, and Miss Mamie Donnelly, a clerk in a photograph gallery in New Haven, Conn., have eloped. The young lady is described as graceful, accomplished and vivacious, with remarkably beautiful dark eyes. Her age is twenty-two years. Her father is Patrick Donnelly, a tailor. The parents of the young man are said to be wealthy young man are said to be wealthy.

THE PILOT ACQUITTED.—Robert D. Giberson, pilot of the ferry boat Pennsylvania, was acquitted in Philadelphia yesterday on a charge of voluntary and involuntary manslaughter, in causing the death of Rudolph C. Fisher, aged fourteen years, by a collision between the ferry boat and a small boat, in which the deceased and other boys were rowing in the Delaware.

THE LATE CHARLES LELAND.—It was mentioned in yesterday's STAR that Mr. Charles Leland died at Long Branch Monday morning of kidney disease. He was one of the famous hotel keepers of that name, and Warren Leland, who was associated with him in the Ocean House, at Long Branch, is now the only surviving brother. Four nephews are engaged in the hotel business—one at Chic go, one at Springfield, Ill., and two in New York. Mr. Leland was born at Landgrove, Vt., in a hotel called the Green Mountain Coffee House, which was kept by his father. His first experience in New York was in the old Carleton House, and after being at the Bond Street House and then at the Union Place hotel, he joined his brother Simeon in 1846 in the charge of the Clinton hotel, in Beeckman street, where the Temple Court building is. In 1852 four brothers, of whom Charles was one, opened the Metropolitan hotel. They began there the custom of serving meals continuously from 5 o'clock in the morning to midnight. The hotel remained under the control of the Lelands for twenty years. In 1864 Charles and two of his brothers bought the Grand Union, at Saratoga, and spent a great deal of money in THE LATE CHARLES LELAND.-It was mentwo of his brothers bought the Grand Union, at Saratoga, and spent a great deal of money in improvements. NICKLE-PLATED CORPSES.—An ingenious Frenchman has conceived the thoroughly Parisian idea of preserving bodies by covering them with a metal skin. Burying, he says, has been condemned by experience, cremation is bad, as it destroys all evidence of crime in case murder has been committed, and embalming is expensive. But galvanizing is safe and cheap. The poor can be zinc-plated, well-to-do individuals may acquire a copper coat, and the millionaires can enjoy the luxury of silver or gold plate. M. Kergovaty, the inventor of this method, says he has already used it successfully eleven times in the case of human beings, and over a hundred times for animals.

GEN. MYEE'S MAUSOLEUM.-The Buffalo Ex-GEN. MYEE'S MAUSOLEUM.—The Buffalo Express says: "The mausoleum, in Forest Lawn cometery, to receive the remains of Gen. Albert J. Myer, is now complete, except the window of stained glass. Those not acquainted with its location may have observed from the park boathouse the massive globe that surmounts it. It is a very imposing structure."

REV. SAN JONES AND "OLD SI."—Rev. Sam Jones was in Nashville, Tenn., Saturday, on his way to Georgia from St. Joseph, Mo. In regard to the revival he conducted in that city Mr. Jones said: "There was a great moral upheaval. Some twenty-two or three hundred souls were converted, and about eight hundred of them were adolescents." He was assisted in the meeting by Mr. Samuel W. Small, better known as "Old Si," of whom he said: "He did his work effectually at St. Joe and won the hearts of that people. His sermons were remarkable. He is in Atlanta now. Small bids fair to be one of the most powerful preachers in this nineteenth century. He is as amart a fellow as I ever mixed with, very industrious and thoroughly converted, I do believe."
